

Draft a Factor List

Create a list of factors you should consider when prioritizing projects for your product (either the AI Product Scenario mentioned in the course or your own product idea).

Your ability to create a compelling roadmap and clearly describe what you prioritized and why will be crucial to your success as a product manager. This exercise will help you prepare to do that well.

Factors	Notes
Example: Financial cost	Some projects may generate license fees from third parties, meaningful change in server or storage requirements (such as storing large video files), or other direct costs. This does not include engineering cost, which would typically be measured separately.
