Find Key Roadmap Decisions

Before you develop a full draft of your roadmap, you want to identify as early as possible the key decisions you will need to make. The earlier you know, the better you can leverage your time with other people to foster healthy debate and make the best possible decisions.

Instructions:

1. Outline 1-3 key decisions you see coming for your product roadmap. For example, if you have an iOS app, you may need to decide if you want to spend the quarter building additional features for the iOS app or if you want to maintain the same feature set and build an Android version.
2. For each question, outline why you think it is critical, what type of information will help you make that decision effectively, and who will be impacted by the decision (internal teams, specific types of customers, etc.).

Key Decision 1:

Why is this decision critical?

What further information will improve the quality of your decision?

Who will be impacted by the decision (positively and negatively)?

Key Decision 2:

Why is this decision critical?

What further information will improve the quality of your decision?

Who will be impacted by the decision (positively and negatively)?

Key Decision 3:

Why is this decision critical?

What further information will improve the quality of your decision?

Who will be impacted by the decision (positively and negatively)?
